A man said the other day: "I've hired a good many livery horses in my wanderings around the world, but I never had a better one than that mare I got from the Territorial Stables on King street yesterday." His friends go there now.

COOPER MADE NO FRIENDS.

Washington Officialdom Disgusted With the Secretary.

Advises by the Sonoma from Washington tell a very different tale from that told in one of the local papers about the attitude of Congress and the National Government in regard to the feeling about the action of Secretary Cooper in attempting to force his way upon the floor of the Territorial House of Representatives. These advises state that the prominent members of the Administration agree that Cooper over-stepped the bounds of his rights when he made the attempt. The high officials feel little sympathy with Cooper in his anomalous position, although the more conservative officials do not entirely agree with the action of the House in summarily ousting him.

Cooper gained no supporters by his action, say the advises, and in fact made many opponents for the policy of the Republican party by his high-handed move.
